HINTS & TIPS ON EXHIBITING VEGETABLES:

- It is important that the fruit or vegetable has reached maturity perhaps more important that it has not past its peak.
- Most fruit and vegetables are best picked on the same day that they will be judged. This is particularly important with leaf vegetables such as silver beet as they will wilt quickly.
- Some fruit and vegetables such as onions and pumpkins can be picked when they are at their best and stored for the show if handled properly.
- When choosing which fruit or vegetables to show remember a good, even colour that is true to the variety and without blemishes is important.
- For classes where more than one of the same variety is required try to choose fruit or vegetables with uniform size, shape and colour.
- Stating the name of the variety of fruit or vegetable you have grown is an advantage as each variety has individual characteristics. Think of the difference between a Jap and a QLD blue pumpkin or the difference between a Granny Smith and a Jonathan apple.

OPEN CLASSES:

Open to all individuals and groups

If the variety of an exhibit is unknown, entry will still be accepted to classes requesting a named variety. Naming the variety is an advantage in classes that request you to do so.
